Thursday's girls diving: H-H's Adlam wins SOL Continental

By Stuart London

Staff Writer

TOWAMENCIN - Hatboro-Horsham senior Chelsea Adlam knew winning the Suburban One League Continental Conference would be a whole lot more difficult than the first three times due to realignment.

Usually, Adlam's main competition was teammate Kelsey Tennent - but North Penn was now in the conference, and that meant defending PIAA District One champion Julia Tate would now be competing.

Adding even more intrigue to the conference meet, when the Hatters faced the Maidens during the regular season, Tate did not dive so this would be their first meeting of the season.

"I was especially nervous this year," said Adlam, who is looking at Penn State, James Madison and Pitt for college.

In the end, the Hatters' pair held off the new competition as Adlam won her fourth straight SOL title on Thursday night at North Penn while Tennent was in second for the second straight year, with Tate coming in third.

Central Bucks East sophomore Adele Foley was having a spectacular meet and had as good a chance as any to win it until a poor score in her next-to-last dive. She ended up sixth and CB South freshman Lindsay Schmidt ended up moving up to fourth.

While Adlam had an up-and-down night, Tennent was pleased about how consistent she was.

"It really was a great meet for me," said Tennent, who came in third as sophomore. "I was pretty solid on all my dives."

And Tennent harbors no jealousy to coming in second to Adlam once again.

"We're friends," she said. "It just seems to always end up this way."
